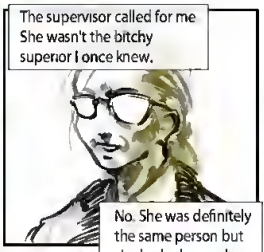
It was a strange feeling.
It was a warm, unfamiliar feeling. Something I've never felt before.

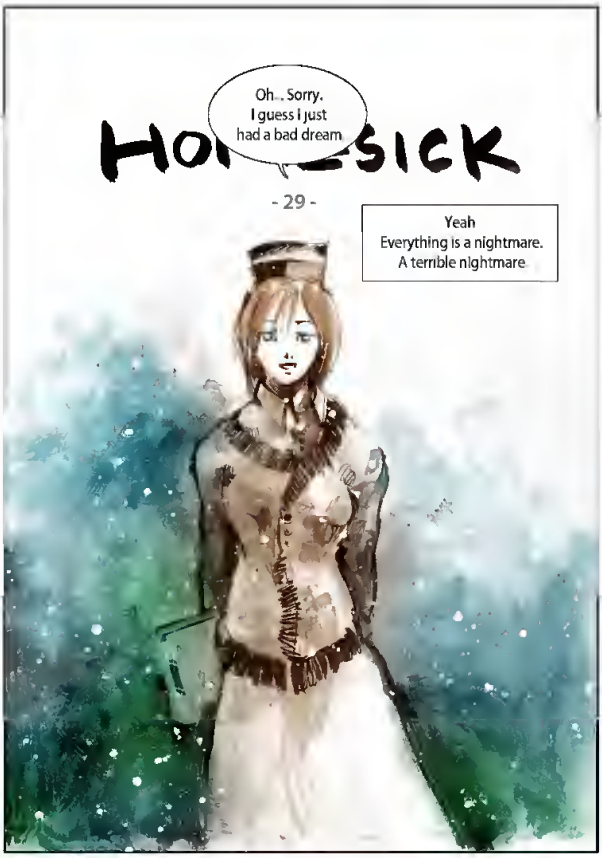
Kim!
You fell asleep again?
Our lunch break is over



The supervisor called for me
She wasn't the bitchy superior I once knew.
No. She was definitely the same person but she had...changed.

I was just taking a smoke break.

Smoking?
You've never even touched a cigarette before
Were you dreaming?
She smiled as she talked
It was the first time I'd seen her smile
Wait. Is it?



Oh... Sorry.
I guess I just had a bad dream
HOMESICK
- 29 -
Yeah
Everything is a nightmare.
A terrible nightmare

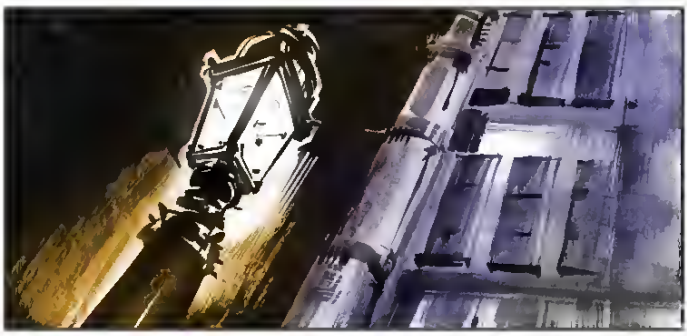
All afternoon,
I finished all my late work.
It was tedious, but I was able to finish in a good mood.
The ophthalmology department is to your left, please take this form and fill it out.
INFOR
Did you take care of things I asked you before?
Yes. Here it is, ma'am.
As expected. I've worked here for 10 years and you're by far the best nurse I've ever seen.
I smiled a little after hearing her compliments. Work was enjoyable. This hospital, the patients, and my coworkers were all good people.
Kim, can you take care of this for me?
A young doctor often talked to me. My supervisor grinned a little and took her leave.
The handsome doctor came closer. My face became hot.
Do you think it'll be ready for me to pick up before I get off work?
Of course!
I smiled again at his handsome face.

I could feel the night breeze running through my hair.

I took my time walking home.

I bought my dad's favorite bread on the way back.

My dad rarely came home because of his busy schedule at the hospital.



The way home.

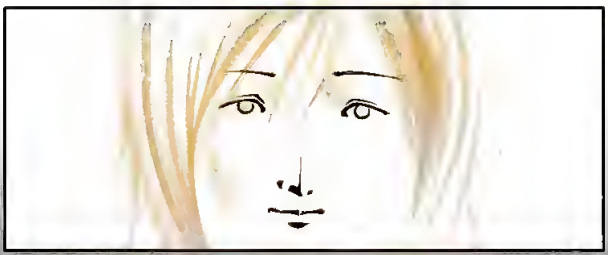
The bread's warmth.

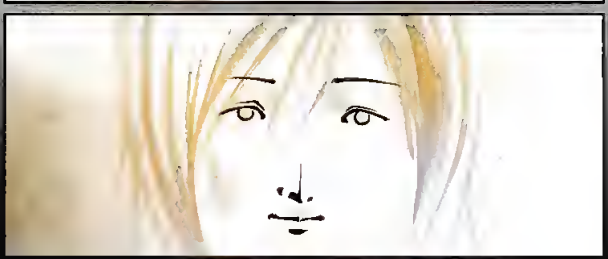
Kind coworkers.

Handsome and young doctor.

Happy family.

And happy me.





So this is all a dream?

VICTOR FOSTER, MD

The younger me stood outside and nodded.
She looked at me with jealous, cold eyes

Thank you.
For letting me know
But, I'm not ready yet.

To be continued...

tapastic

tapastic.com
www.facebook.com/mrnohman

Mr. Nohman